

Our Religious & Worldview Education Curriculum Vision

“RE is important because, like every other subject, it provides a particular set of materials through which pupils come to understand important things about the world and themselves. It stands in the curriculum as a set of ideas and practices that have shaped and continue to shape our world. The business of RE is an exploration of the influence of religions and beliefs on individuals, culture, behaviour and national life. “

Mary Myatt

“A worldviews approach enables pupils to explore and gain ownership of their own perspectives, fitting new understanding into their existing mental framework. We learn about religion and beliefs through connecting and contrasting them with our own way of seeing the world.” Ed Pawson

At Leconfield School We ROCK!

- Respect - we have respect for the views of others and understand how these views influence and enhance our world.
- Open Minded - we are open-minded to the views, beliefs and practices of others
- Curious - we are curious to find out more about Hinduism (Sanatana Dharma), Christianity, Judaism as well as other religions and worldviews
- Kind - we explore the ways that different religions and worldviews encourage kindness and care

In conclusion... We ROCK!
